Many wildlife lived a long, healthy, and happy life in this nature preserve.

Legend has it that during the month of Halloween, the spirits of the long-departed animals return from the magical realms, re-animating their dead decaying boney bodies, so they can once again roam around on their old stomping grounds.

It is never a good idea to be at the park at night, especially during Halloween Hauntings.

However, during the daytime, these animal ghosts can be safely observed while they are resting and hanging out together near the portal of the magical trees, gateway of the magical realms.
